Carson Guy earned his Bachelor of Arts from Texas State University in 2007 and his Juris Doctor from St. Mary's School of Law in 2011. He has been licensed to practice law in the State of Texas since 2011 and in the Western District of Texas since 2013. After graduating, Carson worked for Judge Barbara Hervey at the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals as her Briefing Attorney. Carson subsequently entered private practice until he returned to the Court in 2013, to be Judge Hervey's Research Attorney.

A former member and advisory member of the Texas Bar Journal Board of Editors from 2016 to 2023, Carson is also a member of the Williamson County Inn of Court and has been a member of the American Inns of Court Membership Committee since 2018. He has written and coauthored several articles, including in the Texas Bar Journal and in the SMU Annual Texas Survey, and has given numerous presentations.

Carson lives in Lampasas with his wife, Jessica, his two children, Stratton and Claire, and their Sheepadoodle, Walter.
